Making Learning Visible (MLV) Std III

Education is not the piling on of learning, information, data, facts, skills or abilities -that's training or instruction- but is rather making visible what is hidden as a seed.

-Thomas Mere

How wonderful is to see what our kids are doing in school. Well, some of them go home and explain everything in detail at times even enact the teacher. But, what about those who think parents know everything they do at school and need not retell them.

For those who wanted to experience a moment of what "My Child" has learnt till now? This day was an achievement in itself.

Just 25 teaching days till the D-day and the kids were amazing. With FA's lined up it was like a revision session for them. Parents - who took a day off or had taken half day left their important tasks away and attended the MLV. A big bow from our side and regards to them. Those who missed due to prior appointments will get a glimpse from the pictures.

What exactly was MLV about?

Culmination of different subjects and how they could be shown with hands on activities.

How did it help my child?

Views were taken from children about how they would like to present, explain and rehearse. Knowing about a particular topic is not just the objective. Here the objective was -'All students were able to keep aside their fear of facing the crowd and were able to speak about a particular topic.'

The end process was that they learnt prior planning, collecting resources, arranging, and distribution of work, presenting, speaking about what they knew and answering queries along with making the whole process lively.

Parents have given their feedback verbally, and also in writing through mail and it will surely help us in the long run.

Teachers along with parents will be able to guide children on the right path to progress with their ideas and presentation.
