Navlakha bail: No interim protection from arrest, HC to hear matter today

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
MUMBAI NOVEMBER 14

GRANTING NO interim protection from arrest to activist Gautam Navlakha, the Bombay High Court on Thursday adjourned his anticipatory bail application till Friday.

Navlakha had moved the HC on Wednesday after a special court in Pune turned down his anticipatory bail application and refused to grant further interim protection from arrest.

Arguing for Navlakha, lawyer Yog Chaudhry said the HC on Thursday that his situation was identical to that of professor and activist Anand Tebrumbde, who has also been charged under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act (UAPA) and is accused of being part of the Egar Parishad held in Pune on December 31, 2017.

Chaudhry said that Tebrumbde was granted protection from arrest to make a statement about not arresting Navlakha until his anticipatory bail application is heard on Friday. Pai, however, said, "I will not make any concession".

Navlakha moved the HC after a special court in Pune rejected his anticipatory bail application on Tuesday. In its order rejecting his anticipatory bail plea in the Egar Parishad case, the special court took note of various documents submitted by the prosecution, including those titled "Strategy and Tactics (S & T) of the Indian Revolution" and "Work in urban areas", both allegedly recovered from the possession of co-accused P Varavara Rao.

The Pune court observed, "It appears from the documents that banned organisation was operating in different ways to achieve its objectives. Different members were entrusted with different activities, which was part of larger conspiracy".
